TITAN CO. STOCKHOLDERS AUTHORIZE PLANT SALE

Empower Directors to Act for Best Interests of Owners

MAY MEAN EXPANSION

At a special meeting last Friday of stockholders of the Titan Metal Co., the board of directors was authorized to conduct negotiations as might be deemed advisable for the best interests of the present owners. Just what the action foreshadows, regarding the future of the plant, is a matter concerning which authentic information is not obtainable. The presumption is that it forecasts a reorganization of some kind, possibly a sale of the plant to new interests.

One version which seems to have gained general circulation, but which has not been confirmed, is that a company in Michigan is considering purchasing the Titan plant, moving its western operation here, and combining the two into one mammoth concern. The Michigan company uses considerable of the material manufactured by the Titan Co., which of course has to be shipped by freight. By combining the two plants present operating costs would be greatly reduced, it is stated.

If the foregoing proves to be correct, it will mean better prospects than ever for Bellefonte. Stockholders say that, as they understand matters, their interests will not suffer, even though there should be a reorganization without any actual sale. It is their thought that they will receive par for their stock.

As stated above, definite information regarding the whole matter is not to be had at this time, due no doubt to the fact that negotiations have not developed to a point where very much may be given out for publication. The one hope of all Bellefonte is that whatever is done will in no manner affect future operation of the Titan plant. It has been and is a valuable and valued industry for Bellefonte. Employment is given to a fairly large number of men, and the payroll has kept considerable money in circulation here, a fact that is appreciated by our merchants. The plant has continued in operation when many others in adjoining sections have been forced to close down because of business depressions.

Kiddies' Day.

At a meeting of the Kiddies Day committee, last Friday evening at the Elks club, Thursday, June 12, was selected as the big day for the celebration. Any child between the ages of 6 and 14 years, is eligible for registration, which will open June 2 and close June 10. There will be a grand street parade the evening before and Emerick's busses will be on hand early in the morning to carry the kiddies to the park. Everything, including the boats and eats, will be free. Athletic events for both girls and boys and all kinds of games will be the order of the day.

Logans to Run Park Dances.

There has been a great deal of speculation among the young folks, as to whether or not there would be any Hecla Park dances this year, as Mr. Hockman the present owner, did not care to undertake the job of running them himself. But there will be dances, and some fine orchestras have been booked during the season. The Logan fire company will have charge of all dances, and for the opening on Decoration Day, Casale's Keystone Sirens, of Williamsport, well known from last year, will furnish the music.

Convicts Quickly Recaptured.

Two prisoners escaped from Rockview last evening between 6 and 8 o'clock. However, their liberty was short lived as they were recaptured about 2 o'clock this (Thursday) morning at Snow Shoe Intersection, by guards Davis and Rhoades. The men are Edward Brophy and James Smith, both serving one to two years sentences and both committed from Newcastle, Lawrence County. They made no resistance when apprehended and are now in the county jail awaiting re-sentence.

Baseball at Snow Shoe.

Residents of the Snow Shoe and Clarence sections will be provided with an interesting program of events at the Snow Shoe Driving Park on Decoration Day. There will be two baseball games, one at 10:30 in the morning, and the other at 2:30 p. m. Closely matched teams will compete for honors. There will be dancing in the pavilion in the evening from 8 until 12 o'clock. Special music will be furnished. The various events will be for the benefit of the Snow Shoe baseball association.

CHAS R. KURTZ DEAD

Publisher of "Centre Democrat" Expired Tuesday in Phila.

Charles Robert Kurtz, publisher of the "Centre Democrat," died at the Jefferson Hospital, in Philadelphia, on Tuesday evening at 11:25 o'clock, from a complication of diseases. He had been in declining health for some time, and had been a patient in the hospital in Philadelphia for several weeks.

The first noticeable breaking down in the health of Mr. Kurtz was about two years ago, when it was believed that he had suffered a slight stroke. For a time he had comparatively little use of one arm, but the cause was diagnosed as neuritis. At intermittent periods thereafter he appeared to regain his old-time health. Several months ago, however, he suffered a pronounced decline, which caused no little apprehension among his friends. Seemingly he was fully conscious of the gravity of his condition, for when friends urged him to divorce himself from all business cares, he remarked in characteristic fashion, that he would gladly surrender everything he owned if he could thereby regain his health.

Deceased was born in Aaronsburg, October 31, 1864, a son of Frederick and Anna Harter Kurtz. When he was about 3 years of age the family moved to Centre Hall, where he grew to manhood, receiving his earlier education in the Centre Hall schools. When he was 17, he entered Bucknell University, graduating in 1886. For about 2 years after his graduation he was virtually in charge of his father's paper, the Centre Hall "Reporter," after which he came to Bellefonte to take charge of the "Centre Democrat." He remained in charge until 1895, when he purchased the paper. He was, for about 9 years, Surveyor of Port of Philadelphia, serving two terms under President Wilson and about a year under Harding. He was active in Democratic political circles, and was a member of the Elks and Woodmen.

He was married to Miss Lois V. Calderwood, who survives with two children, Frederick and Lois Virginia. He is also survived by one brother, J. Fred, of Lewisburg.

Funeral services will be held from the late home on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Interment at Union cemetery.

MRS. SARAH HAYES DEAD

Well Known Bellefonte Woman Passed Away at Atlantic City.

Mrs. Sarah McAllister Hayes, aged 73 years, widow of the late Dr. Thomas R. Hayes, died Thursday evening, May 22, at her home in Atlantic City from complications, following a more or less extended illness. Her remains were brought to Bellefonte on Tuesday and interment made from the train. Services were conducted at Atlantic City by the Rev. Mr. Mellon. Rev. Dr. William C. Thompson, pastor of the Bellefonte Presbyterian church, conducted the brief services at the Union cemetery here.

Mrs. Hayes was a former and very highly esteemed resident of Bellefonte, where she was born April 2, 1851. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. N. McAllister, and a sister of Mrs. James A. Beaver. She married Dr. Thomas R. Hayes, who preceded her to the grave in December, 1913. Mrs. Hayes was a zealous worker in religious and charitable circles, and for her many acts of kindness will long be remembered here where she was known best and universally admired.

56 Patients in Hospital.

The extreme capacity of the Bellefonte Hospital is supposed to be 50 patients, but there are no less than 56 there now, 27 of whom are typhoid patients, from Collins Row and Coleville. The 5 new typhoid cases admitted since last week, are Paul Justice, Harry and Laura Davis, Jack Leathers and Paul Gettig. Miss Eckert, superintendent of the hospital, received a letter from the State Department of Health commending her for the capable and efficient way she and her staff of nurses are handling the situation, the like of which is unknown in the history of the hospital. The greatest credit is due these heroic women who are battling against such heavy odds, handicapped as they are by the insufficient facilities of the present hospital equipment.

Kiwanis Entertain Vets.

The Kiwanis Club entertained Civil war veterans at the weekly dinner, held on Tuesday at the Bush House, as follows: Samuel B. Miller, Rev. Mr. Emenhizer, George Cox, A. H. Rice, S. H. Guisewhite, James Alters, Samuel Shirk, James Miller, William Flack and John Reed. Kiwanians who spoke were Messrs. Stock, Hazel, Mallory and Love, while Samuel B. Miller responded for the veterans. "Stunt nite" will feature next week's meeting, which will be held at the Brockerhoff House.

CENTRE COUNTY BOYS IN JUDGING CONTEST

Will Compete During Farmer's Week at State College.

EXPECT 2000 FARMERS

A delegation of Centre County boys will go to State College for the annual Young Farmer's Week which is to be held June 9 to 13 under the auspices of the Penns. State College. Several of the boys will compete in state-wide judging contest which will be held on Thursday June 12th. Dairy cattle, general livestock including beef cattle, horses, sheep, swine, poultry and crops will be judged by the juniors in these contests and prizes will be awarded the individual winners and the team champions.

The first three days of the week will be devoted to instruction in agriculture, organized recreation and play, and special entertainment. Arrangements have been made to house the boys free of charge in one of the college buildings and reservations will be made for the girls at rooming houses at $1.00 per day. Thursday has been designated as Farmer's Day at the College and at least 2000 farmers will be expected to visit the college farms and view the experimental work being done in crops and livestock. Thirty demonstrations and lectures have been arranged for various hours throughout the day, and a farmers dairy judging contest, an hour devoted to field events, and an auction sale of pure-bred dairy calves have been scheduled as added attractions. A program has also been arranged for the women.

Farmers and their families are urged to arrive at State College by the evening of June 11 when the big meeting has been scheduled with special talks, community singing, and educational moving pictures. Frank P. Willits, Secy. of Agriculture, and Dr. John M. Thomas, president of the college, will talk at this gathering.

Boys and girls interested in Young Farmer's Week or adults planning to attend Farmer's Day are urged to get in touch with County Agent R. C. Blaney for detailed information.

PRISON FOR EX-MINISTER

Former Unionville Pastor Sentenced for Immorality.

Rev. J. V. L. Wagner, of Jersey Shore, formerly of Unionville, who was convicted in March in the Lycoming County courts of immoral relations with a girl member of his congregation, who was at the time less than 16 years old, was on Wednesday morning sentenced by Judge Whitehead, at Williamsport, to serve from 7½ to 15 years in the eastern penitentiary, pay the costs of prosecution, and $500 fine. Two hours after he was sentenced, Wagner was taken by Sheriff Little to the penitentiary, in Philadelphia. Wagner is married and has a family.

An appeal by counsel for the former minister was denied by Judge Whitehead, who stated that a fair and impartial trial had been held and a just verdict rendered. Wagner stood facing the Judge, but made no comment, either during or after passing of sentence. Judge Whitehead stated that the trying of the case had been a very painful experience for him, remarking that while he had conducted homicide cases of all degrees, none had affected him so much as had the trial of Wagner. The gravity of Wagner's offense, Judge Whitehead added, stood second to murder.

Had the law permitted, Judge Whitehead would have given Wagner a much longer minimum term in prison. The maximum term for Wagner's crime is 15 years, and the minimum could not exceed one-half of that. Judge Whitehead declared that this change in the law was, in his judgment, a very unwise one.

Wagner's trial in Williamsport attracted the widest attention. The father of the girl, led astray by Wagner, appeared as the prosecutor. The girl swore that the charges against Wagner were true, but he denied them. Notes which handwriting experts testified had been written by Wagner, expressed extreme affection for the girl. In one note Wagner volunteered to get a substitute to preach for him if the girl would agree to meet him. He gave instructions in the note how the girl should signal her answer to him while he would be seated on his front porch surrounded by members of his family. Another note, written to the girl while she happened to be visiting at EaglesMere, explained that he wanted to steal away and meet her, even if only long enough for a "few hugs and kisses."

Wagner's defense was a positive denial of everything. He declared that he considered the girl as one of his family and, as was customary in his church, he always addressed her in endearing terms. Wagner's wife also took the stand in his defense, stoutly declaring her belief in his innocence and reiterating her confidence in his loyalty and fidelity to her. Following his conviction Wagner retired from the ministry, pending the outcome of his appeal for a new trial which he asserted would clearly disprove all charges against him. Because of the tender age of the girl alleged to have been wronged by Wagner, the trial and conviction of the minister was one of the most unusual incidents in the history of the Lycoming County courts.

BELLEFONTE CENTRAL TO ABANDON ITS ROAD

Bellefonte to State College Line to Suspend Operation.

HAS HAD STEADY LOSS

The auto-bus has put another railroad out of business. Attorney James C. Furst announced on Monday that the Bellefonte Central Railroad will begin proceedings immediately, asking permission of the Public Service Commission, at Harrisburg, to permanently abandon their line from Bellefonte to State College.

The abandonment of this railroad will be an unparalleled loss to residents of Buffalo Run valley and State College, as well as to the local lime companies which have operations at various points along the line. Thousands of tons of coal go over the rails of this company annually, bound for State College, and more thousands of tons of lime and stone come over it to the Pennsylvania Railroad every year. Aside from this tonnage, a car of local freight is made up daily at the P. R. R. freight station, destined for stations along the Bellefonte Central. The coal consumption of the Pennsylvania State College alone is from 10 to 11 thousand tons annually, all of which is delivered to them over the Bellefonte Central. One lime company, all of whose holdings are located along this line, has a capacity of 30 cars of crushed stone daily.

The College authorities as well as citizens of State College have long been agitating the building of a road by the P. R. R. from Fairbrook, the end of the present line, to State College, a distance of about 9 miles. How much cheaper it would be for the P. R. R. to take over the Bellefonte Central, and how inestimable would be the value of such an enterprise to Bellefonte and the people of Buffalo Run valley, has long been a matter of discussion.

The Bellefonte Central was built in 1885 by the Collins brothers, and the first train was run over it in 1886. For years it yielded an annual profit. Years ago the company established Hunter's Park, and it enjoyed a period of prosperity until the Central Railroad Co., since abandoned, opened Hecla Park. When Andrew Carnegie operated the iron ore mines at Scotia a profitable tonnage was handled over the Bellefonte Central. The building of the old Bellefonte Furnace Co. plant at Coleville provided another source of daily freight. Depletion of local ore mines and the building of more modern furnaces finally resulted in the Scotia mines closing down and the Bellefonte furnace Co. plant was sold and scrapped as junk. Development of the limestone quarries through Buffalo Run Valley gave to the Bellefonte Central a new source of tonnage, but the auto-bus gradually absorbed the greater part of the passenger traffic. The railroad could not compete with the auto-bus in rates, time or frequency of trips, and for several years past enjoyed little of the passenger traffic between Bellefonte and State College.

When Philip and Thomas Collins built the railroad they brought with them to Bellefonte Thomas A. Shoemaker, Ross Parker and W. Homer Crissman. Later Dominic Judge was brought here. All are now dead but Mr. Crissman, who retired from service with the railroad company a few years ago.

Until 1892 the road was known as the Buffalo Run & Bald Eagle Valley Railroad. In that year it was taken over by a corporation known as the Bellefonte Central Railroad Co. Since 1893 its superintendent has been our esteemed townsman, F. H. Thomas. The finest tribute that anybody could pay Mr. Thomas, we confidently believe, is the statement that had it not been for his ceaseless hardwork and careful management the Bellefonte Central would have passed out of existence years ago.

Decoration Day Program.

The organizations and the probable order in which they will march, in the Decoration Day ceremonies in Bellefonte, follows: Form at 1:30 P. M., I. O. O. F. Band, G. A. R. in automobiles, Colors and standards, Spanish-American war veterans, American Legion, Legion Auxiliary, Red Cross, Troop B, Boy Scouts, fraternal organizations, school children, and the fire companies. The machine gun troop will send a firing squad to the Advent cemetery in the morning, to fire over the graves there, and after the services at the Union cemetery, a detachment of the American Legion will go to Centre Hall to assist in the program at that place.

AUMAN GIVEN LIBERTY

Snow Shoe Man Signs His Own Bond for Appearance Next Nov.

Frank Auman, who appeared in court recently and offered self-defense to the charge of causing the death of Constable Hugh Gillette, of Snow Shoe, was given his liberty from jail on Monday. The Court allowed him to change his plea of guilty to that of not guilty and to sign his own bond for $1,000 for appearance in November sessions. The presumption is that at that time, unless some new evidence is produced, Auman will be formally discharged.

After disposing of the Auman matter, Judge Quigley heard several desertion and non-support cases, including the following:

Commonwealth vs Orrie Burns, prosecutrix Orrie Burns, of Rush Township. Order to pay costs and $15 per month to ward the support of his child.

Commonwealth vs William H. Turner, prosecutrix Jesse R. Turner, of Taylor Twp. Turner now has custody of two children. He was ordered to pay costs and $25 monthly toward the support of a third child, which is in the mother's care.

Commonwealth vs John Haverlock, prosecutrix Annie Haverlock, of Philipsburg. Defendant failed to appear and bench warrant issued.

Before final adjournment of Court last week, cases were disposed of as follows:

Commonwealth vs. Herman Maney; violating liquor laws. Prosecutor H. W. Todd. Defendant waived finding of Grand Jury and sentence was suspended.

Commonwealth vs. Paul B. Ripka; statutory offense. Settled.

Commonwealth vs. Harry Rossman; statutory offense. Settled.

Commonwealth vs. Verna Bulroski, Dora Shope and Delphia Shank; attempted forgery. Prosecutor Harry Dukeman. True bill.

Commonwealth vs. Carrie White; forgery. Prosecutor Charles H. Foster. True bill.

Commonwealth vs. Charles Vonada; desertion and non-support. Prosecutrix Ethel Vonada. Settled.

Commonwealth vs. Luther Mathues; larceny. Defendant pleaded guilty and sentenced to make restitution of goods taken and balance of the sentence paroled.

Commonwealth vs. Blain Williams; assault and battery. Bill ignored.

Commonwealth vs Nathan Frantz; assault and battery. Bill ignored.

Commonwealth vs. James Love; assault and battery. Bill ignored.

Commonwealth vs. Helen Rosanowitz and W. F. McKofke, assault and battery and resisting an officer. Verdict of guilty. The Court suspended sentence on W. F. McKofke, and sentenced Helen Rosanowitz to pay the costs, a fine of $100, and imprisonment in the county jail for 30 days.

Commonwealth vs. James Bailey; statutory offense. Settled.

Commonwealth vs. William Shawley; statutory offense. Verdict of guilty, and the usual sentence imposed.

Commonwealth vs. Leo Orr; statutory offense. Verdict of guilty and usual sentence imposed.

Commonwealth vs. Wilbur Pearce; operating motor vehicle while intoxicated. Sentence to pay the costs of prosecution and $100 fine.

Commonwealth vs. Fred Durgen; enticing female child and attempted rape. Verdict of guilty.

Commonwealth vs. George L. Austin; desertion and non-support. Ordered to pay $35 per month.

CONSERVATION OFFICERS

Dr. Sparks Elected President of Centre County Association.

At a meeting of the Centre County Conservation Association at State College last Friday, Dr. Edwin E. Sparks, President Emeritus of the Pennsylvania State College, was elected president; Prof. J. A. Ferguson, Secretary, and Charles B. Steel, Treasurer. All other officers were re-elected.

There are now 9 organizations affiliated with the Centre County Conservation Council. The dues for each organization are $2 a year. All members of the organizations become automatically members of the Conservation Association.

A series of conservation meetings are being planned for next fall in different parts of the county. Centre County should have a strong Conservation Council that will knit together all agencies looking for the betterment of conditions in the county.

CENTRE COUNTY CROPS VALUED AT $3,081,428

1923 Figures Include Livestock Estimated at $2,120,584.

$608,379 IN PRODUCTS

Centre County farms yielded $3,081,428.88 in crops, and $608,379.21 in products, in 1923. The value placed on livestock on those farms in 1923 was $2,120,584.25. These figures were furnished to "The Republican" by State Secretary of Agriculture P. P. Willits, of Harrisburg.

As compared with 1920, the yield for 1923 showed corn to have decreased 9½%; wheat 1½%; oats less than ½%, but an increase in potatoes of 8%.

"It is interesting to note," states Secretary Willits, "that the eggs on the farms, which are commonly looked upon as incidental, are valued at almost as much as wheat, and about two-fifths more than the potatoes. Potatoes promise to become more important. The yield has been considerably above the average for the state, particularly since 1920, due to better methods of production, especially disease and insect control, and the selection of better seed. This yield is still much below the possibilities when we consider that the average production of potatoes of the state was 106 bushels, while over fifty had yields above 400 bushels."

Following are the figures of various crops in Centre County for 1923:

Auto Wrecked by Train.

A Ford touring car owned by Harry Austin was totally demolished as a result of a collision with a freight train about a mile west of Howard, on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Austin had loaned his car to Fred Daughenbaugh to take the latter's family to Howard, and on the return trip the car stalled on the tracks of the new P. R. R. cut-off near Howard just as a fast freight approached the crossing. Seeing that there was no time to get the car off the track, the party jumped for their lives, leaving the Ford to its fate. Fortunately no one was hurt, but the auto was a total wreck.

Report Finding Calcide Rock.

The Pennsylvania Drilling Co., of Pittsburgh, which has been putting down some holes on the Jacob Behrer farm, nearby Scotia, reports finding a thick deposit of calcide rock, said to be of considerable value. The farm was recently optioned by C. C. Hassinger, a former Scotia boy, now residing at Plymouth Meeting, Montgomery County, and in the employ of a large commission and exporting firm in Philadelphia. Calcide rock is a crystalline formation of native limestone. It is cream white in color, harder than marble, and very heavy.

Slight Motor Accident.

Just as Arthur Kuhns, a Penn State student, who was on his way back to school from his home in Clearfield in his Ford "bug," reached the Rhoads turn at the end of Linn St., on Monday morning, a nut fell off the radius rod. Before the young man could bring the car to a stop it had careened to the left and crashed into the stone wall along the road, bending the front axle considerably. Neither Kuhns nor his companion were injured. The Ford was taken to Beatty's for repairs.

Developing the Oil Fields of Azerbaidjan

Many new oil fields have been developed by the state controlled "Azneft" (Azerbaidjan naphtha trust) and hundreds of miles of new railroads have been laid down to connect the fields. The above photograph shows a section of a new railroad under construction. In one case a large section of the Caspian sea was filled in to permit drilling for oil.

Famous Old Street Is Being Widened

Boston Landmarks Vanish in Street Improvement.

Boston.—Sunlight has returned to Governor's alley, which for 91 years has been known to Boston as Province street. The little, narrow thoroughfare, with its 15-inch sidewalks on either side, runs through a part of the city rich in tradition. Crossing from Bromfield street to School street, parallel to Washington and Tremont streets, the old roadway may be best remembered by visitors by the picturesque flight of stone steps leading down to it from one end of Bosworth street.

The street is now being widened, letting in the sunshine where for so many years the shadows have lain heavily under the close, high walls. Landmarks have gone by the board in the work of improvement.

Province Inn Vanishes.

A pathetic old sign, "Province Inn," which once stood for mirth and joviality, liquid and other refreshment, which clung to a partly dismantled wall to the last, was one of the landmarks to go.

Unless efforts being made to save them prove successful, the old stone steps, surmounted by their ornamental iron arch and lamp, are doomed to go also.

The old street for 130 years bore the name Governor's alley, up to the time of the change to Province street in 1833. It was then made a "modern street" with its 15-inch sidewalks and cobblestone paving.

Originally it was a country lane. After the royal governors who came from England to rule the colony of Massachusetts had descended from their carriages at the Province house on what is now Washington street, the horses were driven around to the stables on "Governor's alley."

Was Apple Orchard Once.

Now, the slice of land being added to the street is cut from what once was the governor's apple orchard.

On this site the first Catholic church to be erected in Boston was built in 1788. Near by was the Second Universalist church in 1817, and it was there that the renowned Hosea Ballou was ordained and preached. The entrance from Bosworth street was once Montgomery court, named in honor of General Montgomery, who lost his life when he tried to take Quebec.

Jealous Tom Cat Eats Pet Alligator

Saranac Lake, N. Y.—North country Thomas cats are tougher "birds" than Florida alligators.

A friend sent George H. Saxe, a merchant of Chazzy, an alligator direct from the swamps of Florida. It was placed in the window of the shop and fed raw meat.

The 'gator was a great attraction to all except a large, fierce he-cat. Until the arrival of the warrior from the Sunny South, the Thomas cat had been the apple of its owner's eye. Now it appeared the intruder from the southland was putting the rollers under him.

The cat fixed many mean looks on the 'gator, which retorted by snapping his long jaws. Then, one night it happened. The cold gray light of dawn disclosed the alligator torn to shreds with all the choice parts eaten. Puss is again the household pet.

It was on Bosworth street that Oliver Wendell Holmes lived when he wrote "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table." Bosworth street itself, up to 100 years ago, had been occupied by the gardens of fashionable mansions in Tremont and Bromfield streets.

Increasing congestion in traffic conditions in the narrow thoroughfares of older Boston has resulted in the widening operations now in progress.

MONKEY LIVES WITH PIGS AND RIDES 'EM

Trains Porkers to Be Expert "Saddle Hogs."

Republic, Kan.—In the pigsty of W. H. McClure, farmer, near here, lives a monkey. "Jock," a diminutive member of the tribe of tree-jumpers, wandered aimlessly into this town three years ago and attached himself to a pen of chickens owned by a local fancier. Here his presence caused too much of a stir.

Chanticleers of the flock resented his usurpation of their leadership, and noisy, befeathered battles followed, until the owner was forced to drive the monkey away. By a queer quirk of fate, as "Jock" jumped before the shooing of the poultryman, McClure drove past the house with a wagonload of hogs.

"Jock" swung aboard the wagon and settled comfortably on the back of a fat hog, Dislodged, he leaped to the driver's seat, and from there to the backs of the team. A runaway followed.

When the hogs had been herded together and placed in their pen following the upheaval, "Jock" was seeking assimilation. Since that day three years ago the monkey has been a regular inhabitant of the pigsty. In that time numerous families of pigs have grown to hoghood under "Jock's" guiding care and have become expert "saddle hogs," with the monkey as chief jockey.

At night "Jock" sleeps between two of the hogs. At mealtime he selects portions of the feed that appeal to him and eats them from a vantage point astride the back of one of his adopted brothers.

Defining Sin

Sin is a state of mind, not an outward act.—Sewell.

Valuable Find in Dead Sea Region

Evidence of Early Civilization Discovered.

St. Louis.—Evidence of the existence of a Canaanite civilization of the early Bronze age, dating about the Twentieth century B. C., has been found by the Xenia expedition in a tour of the Dead sea region of Palestine, Dr. Melvin G. Kyle, head of the party, said in a letter.

Doctor Kyle, who is president of Xenia seminary here, declared his explorations also had tended to confirm the judgment of earlier investigators that the two cities of Sodom and Gomorrah, which, according to Biblical accounts were destroyed by fire and brimstone, are buried beneath the Dead sea beyond the power of men to discover them.

Was "Pre-Moabite."

Pottery found in the graves opened by Arab treasure hunters in the region, Doctor Kyle's letter said, shows conclusively the existence of the early Canaanite civilization. He characterized it as a "pre-Moabite civilization," pointing out that "Lot was the father of Moab."

"This is a necessary first link in the evidence we desire," the letter continued, "for the Bible represents just such a civilization as being here in the days of Sodom and Gomorrah. Moreover, there follows just here one of those expressive silences in Bible history.

"The destruction of the cities of the plain put out that civilization as suddenly and completely as one snuffs out a candle. Never again is any mention made or hint given or implied of a civilization in this plain after the Lord destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah. This is exactly what our researches have revealed. Thus, what seemed only negative evidence becomes a positive evidence on the subject. The next civilization that appears is Byzantine, which comes more than 2,000 years later."

Although suggestions have been made that divers be sent down into the Dead sea to recover something from the two cities beneath its surface, Doctor Kyle scouts the idea, declaring the rushing waters of small rivers have brought down alluvial deposits that have been filling the bottom of the sea, making the work of divers exceedingly difficult, if not impossible.

Confutes Drunken Auto Drivers

Here is a modern scientific device to thwart false claims of drunken auto drivers by determining the quantity of alcohol consumed and the degree of intoxication at the time of arrest. The apparatus is offered by Dr. O. W. Ginsberg as an aid to the San Francisco police crusade to halt the reign of mad driving that has cost more than a score of lives in a few months.

HAS DONE MUCH FOR WORLD WAR VICTIMS

Always finding time for the problems of disabled ex-service men in his state, though recognized as one of the busiest specialists in the country, Dr. William E. Lorenz, Legionnaire of Wisconsin, has won high esteem in veterans' circles.

Doctor Lorenz' work in aid of the World war veteran followed his service at the front during the World war, in that most dangerous of positions, head of a field hospital. A field hospital is a sorting point for wounded, and is close enough to the front to make it extremely precarious. It was there the Wisconsin man began to recognize what wounded men must face before they return to normal life in their own country.

He was born in New York city in 1882 and obtained his schooling at Trinity school and New York university. During his freshman year in college, though but sixteen years of age, he enlisted in the regular army and served in the Spanish-American war as a private. He received his degree of M. D. from New York university in 1903, specializing in pathology, nervous and mental diseases. In 1914 and 1915, he served with the United States government as a special expert, investigating pellagra in the southern states.

The Wisconsin Psychiatric institute was started by Doctor Lorenz in 1915, when he assumed the post of director of the institution, which has since developed into one of the most important research departments in the state service. This led to his appointment as professor of nervous and mental diseases at the University of Wisconsin in 1917.

Early in 1917 he recruited a field hospital in Madison, and received a commission as lieutenant, taking command of the unit in June, and was promoted to the rank of major. The company was designated as Field Hospital 127, and was attached to the Thirty-second division. While in France Doctor Lorenz developed a special system for handling wounded, which later was standardized throughout the First army. For the expedition with which the wounded were handled he received the Distinguished Service medal.

Doctor Lorenz' first service for the disabled veterans began when he returned to Wisconsin. He was named as a member of the national rehabilitation committee of the American Legion, representative or neuropsychiatry. While a member of this committee he became active in disclosing the inadequacy of federal plans for hospitalization. With Col. A. A. Sprague and Col. Thomas A. Salmon he appeared before the President when such deficiency in hospitalization was reported to the nation's executive.

It was through Doctor Lorenz' activity that the $250,000 Wisconsin Memorial hospital was authorized by the legislature of that state. In 1922 that hospital was receiving and treating patients, at this time the institution serving the double purpose of commemorating the dead and serving those alive, is almost completed, giving the state the lead in such provision of care for the disabled by a commonwealth.

At the Wisconsin department convention of the Legion in 1923 Doctor Lorenz was named to the post of vice commander, but resigned this position on his appointment to the state board of control. Veterans' affairs, particularly those concerning rehabilitation are close to Doctor Lorenz heart, and he always finds time for such service. As proof of this he served on the service recognition board of the state which administered the soldiers' relief fund, passing on cases of disability without compensation. He also assisted in perfecting machinery for payment of the Wisconsin state bonus

Recently Doctor Lorenz has been much in the public eye because of his research for cures for diabetes, Bright's disease and goiter.

MANY WAR ORPHANS PROBLEM OF LEGION

Child welfare workers are beginning to realize that the American Legion has a real consciousness of the serious problem which confronts it in the care of children orphaned by the World war, and those left by veterans. One of the best known of such workers, O. C. Carstens, director of the Child Welfare League of America, recently made this assertion in a bulletin sent to members of his organization. The letter discusses the Legion proposal to take responsibility for the welfare of orphans of service men, an action ratified by national accord.

Mr. Carstens' bulletin calls attention to an outline of the Legion plan which recently appeared in a publication of the child welfare organization. This plan, he says is "deserving of congratulation and reflects the farsightedness of the Legion's committee.

He particularly commends the fact that the Legion does not intend to relinquish control of these children to anyone else, as it is to be entirely a Legion responsibility.

In suggesting methods of co-operation for his organization, Mr. Carstens wrote:

". . . We would suggest that you bring cases of service men's children to the attention of Legion posts organized to consider them or to interest Legion members. The point, as we see it, is not to request the Legion to undertake the entire care of the children at once, but to work out methods of co-operation through mutual effort in dealing with the actual children who need help."

To Erect Monument for Grand Army Men

It has been a cherished hope of Grand Army veterans in Appleton, Wis., for many years to erect a monument to their departed comrades. The post has dwindled to 14 members and still that dream is unrealized.

But the American Legion has taken over the plans of the older veterans and will erect the tablet as planned.

At a recent meeting of the World war veterans, the newest generation entertained the members of the G. A. R. post, and announced during the course of the meeting that the tablet would be placed at an early date. Gustave Keller, a member of the Legion, made the suggestion following a newspaper notice that the older veterans were unable to fulfill their desire. The movement is unanimously supported by the Legionnaires.

Pershing's Former Q. M. Now in Legion Ranks

Maj. Gen. Harry L. Rogers, U. S. A., retired, formerly quartermaster general under Pershing, has enrolled as a member of the Chatham post of the American Legion in Savannah, Ga.

General Rogers began his army service as quartermaster general in 1918, and held that position until his retirement in 1922. He was made a knight of the Bath by the king of England. In addition to his distinguished service he was in charge of supplies with Pershing's punitive expedition into Mexico and saw service under Gen. Fred Funston in the Vera Cruz expedition in 1914.

The Legion membership reduces him to a "buck" in the ranks but General Rogers has accepted his part willingly, and is doing much to foster Legion spirit in the community.

Memorial Buildings in Eight California Towns

Two hundred and thirty-five thousand dollars has been apportioned among eight towns in Contra Costa county, California, for erection of memorial buildings. The money is to be distributed as follows: Richmond, $52,799.55; Crockett and Danville, $45,027.52; Martinez, $26,463.93; Walnut Creek, $21,975.95; Pittsburgh, $26,180.03; Antioch, $21,125.21; Brentwood, $21,125.21. An initial amount of $13,000 was set aside for each town for immediate use. The money was apportioned from special tax levies in 1922 and 1923, and its distribution was approved by the county council of the American Legion, members of which will be most benefited by erection of the homes.

Destroy Plate Marking Tree for World Warrior

An act of vandalism, destruction of a plate marking the name of a World war hero in Washington, has aroused American Legion officials in the District of Columbia and the organization will closely guard such memorials hereafter.

The tablet, which was attached to a tree, marked the death of William Emery, Jr., former Washington newspaper man and veteran of the World war. On a tour of inspection of all trees bearing tablets in the city, the Legion men found that the tablet had been wrenched from the tree and demolished.

Long Island Post Is Making Good Showing

Late in 1919, when the Blissville post of the American Legion was organized on Long Island, payment of the first month's rent left just $5 in the post treasury. The financial report for the year ending March 31, 1924, discloses that $16,000 has passed through the treasury, and a goodly nest egg is on hand. The post is receiving praise because practically 80 per cent of the adult population was born in Russia and 40 per cent of the veterans in the community came from that same country.

Hear the Stars Twinkle

Science says light and sound are one and the same. General Ferie, Major Mesny and M. Jouaust of a French wireless laboratory claim to have succeeded in transforming light rays into audible sounds. It is known that under the action of light photo-electric cells with a foundation of selenium give off an extremely feeble electric current. Using a four-electrode lamp, the Frenchmen are said to have obtained variations of current from the star Capella, many millions of miles distant from the earth. Later, by using powerful amplifiers, they said they actually "heard" the light rays through a telephone headpiece.

Will Investigate Waterway Project

St. Lawrence Plan to Be Considered in All Aspects.

By JAMES P. HORNADAY

Washington.—Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, says the St. Lawrence waterway commission, of which he was recently made president, will "consider the whole subject in its economic and national aspects" during the next few months. The commission has already had one meeting here, which revealed that every member of the commission is in favor of the project in a broad way.

The development of the St. Lawrence waterway for ocean-going shipping, thus making every port on the Great Lakes an ocean port, and for the development of some two millions of electrical horsepower from the canalization works has been under active consideration of both the United States and Canada for many years. The first definite action taken by our government in the matter was the joint resolution proposed by the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce in 1892. A resolution authorizing a preliminary inquiry was passed in March, 1895. The preliminary commission reported favorably on the feasibility and recommended a more detailed survey. In 1897 congress authorized the survey by the United States army engineers, who made a favorable report in June, 1900. Further interest was suspended pending the construction of the Panama canal, and was again brought under discussion in 1909, at the time of the treaty providing for the appointment of the international joint commission.

Take It Up With Canada.

Consideration of the proposition was again suspended pending the World war. In 1919 congress expressed a desire that the international joint commission investigate the problem and prepare an estimate of the cost of construction. This was done in 1920. The report of the commission was transmitted to congress in 1922. On May 17, 1922, the American government again addressed itself to the Canadian government with suggestions for further action, a reply to which was received on January 30, 1924. The response of the American government, from which the present presidential commission springs, was transmitted on February 27, and the reply of the Canadian government has been issued.

National attention to the development of this route has become greatly advanced by the legislation of the 18 states, creating a council known as the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater association, including Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, Utah and Oregon, with the governors of the states as members of the council. The opening of the St. Lawrence route would affect transportation involving nearly 42,000,000 of our population, and the large amount of electrical power is of vast importance to the contiguous states. The report of the international joint commission to congress in 1922 states:

Burden on the Shipper.

"Existing means of transportation are altogether inadequate. A permanent problem is furnished by the congestion at critical points and the pressure of 'peak' loads. Lake movement of commerce stops at Buffalo and has to go forward by rail, a transfer which places an expense burden on the shipper which, in the case of the farmer, often impairs or completely wipes out his profits. Development of the St. Lawrence route, it is predicted, would permit unbroken movement from lake ports to Atlantic coast ports, or to principal world ports of destination."

The conclusions reached by the international joint commission were that physical conditions were favorable for improvements for navigation which would be permanent and with low maintenance costs, that the total cost of improvement from Montreal to Lake Ontario is estimated at $252,728,200, including the cost of developing 1,464,000 hydro-electric horsepower, that if improvements are carried on simultaneously it would be possible to complete them from the time the work is begun, and that the total annual cost of operation, maintenance and a depreciation of these works, including power plants, would be $2,562,000.

In his message to congress in December of last year President Coolidge said:

"The time has come to resume in a moderate way the opening of our intracoastal waterways, the control of flood waters . . . , the development of the great power and navigation project of the St. Lawrence river. . . . These projects cannot all be undertaken at once, but should have the immediate consideration of the congress and be adopted as fast as plans can be matured and the necessary funds become available.

"This is not incompatible with economy, for their nature does not require so much a public expenditure as a capital investment which will be reproductive, as evidenced by the marked increase in revenue from the Panama canal. Upon these projects depend much future industrial and agricultural progress. They represent . . . the addition of a great amount of cheap power and cheap freight by use of navigation, chief of which is the bringing of ocean-going ships to the Great Lakes."

Says He Heard Ape Indulge in Laughter

Leipzig.—Monkeys often cry like children, but the man-ape is the only animal which laughs, Dr. Emil Carthaus, zoologist and explorer, has concluded after passing many years in the native haunts of wild game in various parts of the world.

In just one instance, reports Doctor Carthaus, he saw and heard a man-ape, or siamang, laugh. This was in the midst of an Indian jungle, where from the safety of a steel cage, the zoologist was making his observations.

In captivity, the siamang is melancholic, asserts Doctor Carthaus, and sits about and broods and cries and sheds tears of distress.

Doctor Carthaus avers neither the cat nor the dog is capable of laughing, notwithstanding the reports of other scientists that they do so.

HERE'S A CHANCE, GIRLS

Ide Neff has been searching for a wife for fifty years of his sixty-six years. In 1912 he decided to alter his appearance and started to grow a heavy beard as well as a luxuriant mop on his dome, with the above pictured results. He recently arrived in Miami after pedaling his bicycle on a 37,000-mile journey about the country, but has not yet found the one and only woman.

Workmen Excavate Marble Steps of Roman Theater

Philippopolis, Bulgaria.—Archeologists are startled by the discovery of what is evidently a Roman amphitheater in the city square, Djumaia, made by workmen here the other day.

The workmen were digging foundations for a new structure when, four meters below the surface of the square, they came upon a flight of marble stairs of massive construction and surface worn smooth by the tread of many feet.

This city contains some remarkable historic structures dating back to Roman and pre-Roman times. Among these memorials of the past is a city wall, which runs over the brow of one of the seven hills on which, like Rome, the city, named for Philip of Macedon, is built.

Alaska Trappers Return on Palatial Steamers

Tacoma, Wash.—Trappers are homeward bound from Alaska in palatial steamers. Unlike the popular fiction characters who come down out of the Northland silence in a canoe piled high with smelly bales, these intrepid adventurers are the gentry of the trade. Early last fall several score of trappers left here for coveted places along the interior rivers and lakes and where during the winter they followed their trap lines in true "wilderness fashion."

The traps have been sprung and cached away for another season, and with fairly large bales the fur-getters are now coming home for well-earned vacations. In average years trappers bring down bales of fur worth from $3,000 to $4,000.

HANDFUL OF SILVER BUYS GOLD BUDDHA WORTH HALF MILLION

Old Shanghai Curio Dealer Gets Ancient Idol.

Victoria, B. C.—A golden idol, a chastely wrought figure of Buddha, fashioned by fingers that crumbled into dust 1,800 years ago, is for sale in a humble curio store in the Kiangse Road, Shanghai, according to passengers arriving from the Orient on the Empress of Russia.

Connoisseurs place its value at $500,000, basing their estimate on the price of $250,000 paid by a resident of Osaka, Japan, for one similar, but smaller in size and mutilated by the loss of a portion of the precious metal from the bottom.

Wrapped in a red and blue silk cover, handled with fingers guarded with cotton wadding, the precious relic has set Shanghai agog with interest and speculation.

Eighteen hundred years ago, when Buddhism was the national religion of Korea, it was an unalterable law that a figure of Buddha should be buried with every member of the royal family. This particular Buddha was interred with the remains of Yu Sam Jai, not a member of the reigning house, but prime minister to the king, who ordered it placed in the coffin of his servant as a special mark of grace in recognition of faithful service.

Two hundred and sixty years ago the descendants of that prime minister unearthed the Buddha in the grave of their ancestor. They failed to realize its value, keeping it only as a memento. Early last month the Shanghai curio dealer, traveling in Korea, persuaded an impoverished descendant of the once powerful Yu Sam Jai to part with it for a handful of silver dollars.

It is only a few inches high, and to the eye of the tyro it is not much better in quality than one of the metal Buddhas that collectors pick up for a dollar or two in any of the thousands of Chinese shops. But not an antiquarian in China would approach the proprietor of the little shop in the Kiangse Road with fewer than hundreds of thousands of dollars to offer in exchange.

Has New Heel Made of Flesh of His Own Leg

Baltimore, Md.—One of the rarest operations in plastic surgery in the history of Johns Hopkins hospital was performed recently by Dr. William F. Reinhoff, resident surgeon, in an attempt to restore the heel of Eric Hamilton, whose foot was crushed in an elevator accident. Doctor Reinhoff announced that the operation's first stages were successful.

Doctor Reinhoff first removed the tuberculous part of the heel. Then the calf of Hamilton's other leg was bisected to the bone its entire length, and the foreshortened heel inserted in this wound.

Hamilton will be compelled to remain in one position from three weeks to a month, during which, if the operation continues successful, the flesh of the heel and the flesh of the other leg will grow together, giving Hamilton a new heel from the flesh of his leg.

When this adhesion process is complete another operation, separating the heel from the leg, will be performed, and Hamilton will have only the scar in the back of his leg to show for his injury, Doctor Reinhoff declared.

WHO'S WHO in the WORLD

International Rotarians Visit Abroad

Guy Gundaker of Philadelphia (portrait herewith), president of Rotary International, is rotating in Europe these days, accompanied by Frank Mulholland of Toledo, past international president of Rotary. The two American Rotarians delivered addresses at the convention in Torquay of the Rotary International association for Great Britain and Ireland. Mr. Mulholland aided in the organization of Rotary in the British Isles twelve years ago. There are Rotary clubs in France, Holland, Belgium, Spain, Italy, Denmark and Norway and the two Americans are visiting as many as time will allow, as President Gundaker plans to attend the international convention of Rotary in June in Toronto, Can.

President Gundaker spoke at Torquay of the 98,700 Rotarians in the 1687 Rotary clubs in 26 nations—a world fellowship of business and professional men united in the ideal of service to bring about understanding, good will and international peace."

"Through Rotary mankind is finding means of substituting friendly accord among nations for orgies of fear, suspicion and apprehension," Mr. Mulholland told the convention. "The great ameliorating fact of international acquaintance and friendship is coming into the world, growing into the lives of men, teaching them how to live so that their elbows will not jab the other fellow.

Trotsky in the Soviet Saddle Again

After an absence of nearly six months from all participation in soviet affairs Leon Trotzky, the soviet war minister, has re-entered public life with an energetic and aggressive spirit which has surprised his friends who are aware of his frail health.

"The United States is the most democratic country which plunged into this imperialistic war without idealistic stimulation," said M. Trotzky. "It has become a colossal Tower of Babel and is trying to digest into its stomach all the huge gains it realized from the war. It is now keeping aloof from European affairs, but at the same time is carefully preparing for future war. It is placing aviation and asphyxiating gas foremost in its equipment. It is developing these destructive agents not only for a struggle against enfeebled Japan but also against Europe.

"We all know the use to which the dentist puts asphyxiating gas," he continued, "but when we see the United States preparing to use gas to extract a revolutionary tooth from Europe we must be on the alert. In the meantime Americans are trying these new gases upon their criminals, discarding the use of electricity as a means of killing wrongdoers. Picture to yourself rich and satisfied America sending to famine-stricken, revolutionary Europe whole squadrons of airplanes which threaten to rain these noxious gases upon our heads!"

Nathalia Crane, Ten-Year-Old Poetess

Nathalia Crane, ten years old, who wrote her first poem a year and a half ago in a burst of admiration for the janitor's son, has signed a contract with a publisher who wishes to bring out a book of her poems. Nathalia is a public school girl in Brooklyn, N. Y. Since she began writing at the age of nine Nathalia has had published upward of a hundred poems in newspapers and magazines in all parts of the United States and in Canada and England.

Her first poem, which had to do with the janitor's son (a mere passing romance, however), began:

O, I'm in love with the janitor's boy,
And the janitor's boy loves me;
He's going to hunt for a desert isle
In our geography.

A desert isle with spicy trees,
Somewhere near Sheepshead Bay;
A right nice place, just fit for two,
Where we can live alway.

O, I'm in love with the janitor's boy,
He's busy as he can be;
And down in the cellar he's making a raft
Out of an old settee.

He'll carry me off, I know that he will,
For his hair is exceedingly red;
And the only thing that occurs to me,
Is to dutifully shiver in bed.

Nathalia is a descendant of John Alden of Mayflower fame.

Depew Stands by the Mid-Victorians

Chauncey M. Depew has had another birthday and out of the wisdom of ninety years, he administered a philosophical spanking to modernists and anti-Victorians at the thirty-third annual dinner of the Montauk club of New York in his honor. His address was broadcasted. He said in part:

"I enter fully into the appreciation and praise of the Nineteenth century. Steam is followed by electricity, by radio and radium, and discovery reveals the secrets of nature and overcomes the handicaps on health and longevity until the brain becomes fatigued to understand it all. But the soul starves. The foundations of faith are shaken, and readers of the creed who deny its teachings and preachers who want their independence and weaken reverence by denying the Divinity of Christ, fill the newspapers and empty the churches.

"We carry criticism too far and the analytical spirit is rampant. The Victorian Era was distinguished by rare scholarship and high contributions to literature and science. The Victorians have a permanent place in the temple of fame. But a cult has arisen whose mission and labors are to ridicule the time, its authors, its statesmen and its men and women of distinction. It surpasses imagination to conceive what worth while the iconoclasts get from their efforts."

BOYS CAMP IN AUGUST

Three County Outings Begin on 5th and Continue Until 26th.

The Board of Directors of the local "Y" have secured the use of the 306 acre site of Camp Kanesatake, situated near Franklinville, Huntingdon County, for conducting a boys camp this year. The Sunday School training camp will close on Aug. 2 and the boys' camp will open Aug. 5 and continue until Aug. 26. A number of improvements have been made at the camp, the most attractive of which is the construction of a temporary dam, at a cost of $500, which will assure a large and safe bathing place for the boys on the camp property. Twelve cabins 14x16 ft. have been built this year and other improvements made which will add greatly to the convenience and attractiveness of the camp.

It has been decided to extend the camp registration to boys 10 to 16 years of age who are members of Y. M. C. A.'s in the three counties of Huntingdon, Blair and Centre, also to boys of these ages who are attending Sunday School. The registrations of the camp will be limited to 100 boys, and can be made for 2 or 3 weeks. The committee have set the price at $6 per week, which covers all expenses except transportation. Registration should be mailed to the Y. M. C. A. by July 1.

The camp will be conducted by Mr. Aplin, general secretary of the Bellefonte "Y," who is quite experienced in handling boys and camps, having conducted 14 boys' camps. A strong corps of leaders and assistants will comprise the staff to take charge of the boys and make the outing beneficial to them in every way.

O. R. M., has the arrangements in hand, and will be represented in the parade in their respective bodies, also the Beech Creek troops of Boy and Girl Scouts. The surviving members of George Harleman Post. No. 302, G. A. R., will be conveyed in automobiles. The line of march will cover several of the principal streets of Beech Creek, marking graves in the Clark cemetery, thence to Blanchard, where in the Baptist and Christian cemeteries ritualistic services will be held and graves marked, and salutes fired, the exercises terminating with the Memorial service in the Church of Christ at 11 A. M. Philip S. Kift, of Lock Haven, will deliver the address at this service.

Penn State's Big Class.

The largest class to be graduated from the Pennsylvania State College in its sixty-eight years will receive diplomas on Tuesday, June 10. The senior class now has 512 candidates for graduation, and it is expected that almost 500 will qualify for diplomas. An unusually attractive program is being arranged for the Commencement Week celebration which is to start with alumni reunion gatherings on the evening of Friday, June 6. The annual June Alumni Day will be observed on Saturday, June 7, to be featured by a big "stunt carnival" which will have special attractions aimed to provide wholesome fun and entertainment for the returning graduates and hundreds of other visitors expected at that time. Dr. Leon C. Prince, of Dickinson College, will be the Baccalaureate speaker. The new graduates will hold their class day exercises on Monday, June 9 and the Commencement on the following morning brings the celebration to a close. LIFT BAN ON DANCING.

Methodists at General Conference Modify Strict Old Church Law.

After years of agitation, discussion and dissension, the Methodist Episcopal general conference, at Springfield, Mass., on Tuesday voted five to one lifting the ban upon amusements, except those "which cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus." A minority report of the bishops committee forbidding theatre attendance on Sundays, and specifying dancing and immoral theatre performance, was ordered tabled without discussion.

"We are not beating a retreat; we are going forward," declared Dr. George Elliott, of Detroit, Mich., who presented the majority report of the standing committee on the state of the church. The report removes restrictions against dancing, card playing, theatre attendance, etc., which has been in force since the inception of the Methodist Episcopal church. Supporting the majority report, Dr. Elliott further declared:

"Religion must appeal to the conscience, and it is the conscience of men that must be treated. This new law goes back to Wesley and Paul and Jesus Christ, and goes forward to a time when law shall be no more because written in the hearts of men."

Further amending the church law relative to discipline, the majority report as adopted altered the definitions which warned against theatre going so as to read as follows:

"We lift up a solemn note of warning and entreaty particularly against the attendance upon immoral, questionable and misleading theatrical and motion picture performances."

OVER THE COUNTY

One hundred robed Knights of the Ku Klux Klan attended services at the Evangelical church at Millheim, recently.

A slight fire at the home of Mrs. Sampsel, along the state highway at Pleasant Gap, was extinguished by a volunteer bucket brigade, recently.

Some philanthropist of Centre Hall, whose name is withheld, has secured the services of a professional landscape gardener, to draw plans for the new playground at his own expense.

The condition of Mrs. Margaret Thomas, of Centre Hall, who is in the Bellefonte hospital, suffering from injuries sustained in a fall from a step ladder, some weeks ago, is rapidly improving.

Ray, 11 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gregg Carper, of Spring Mills, was seriously injured recently, when the horse which he was riding fell on the concrete road, throwing the boy off. He was rendered unconscious and did not regain his senses for about 8 hours.

Dr. Lloyd Felton, a native of Pine Grove Mills, now an instructor at the Harvard Medical school, has discovered a new serum treatment for pneumonia which is expected to reduce the fatality list of the disease, 50 per cent. Dr. Felton is 32 years old and a graduate of Johns Hopkins University.

W. S. Williams was the low bidder on the construction of the new High School building in Centre Hall, and secured the contract. His bid, which included everything, such as wiring, heating, and plumbing, was $15,918. Mr. Williams intends to start work immediately, as one of the stipulations of the contract is that the building is to be ready for occupancy by September 1, 1924.

Minstrels a Success.

The Academy minstrels played to full houses last Thursday and Friday evenings and successfully put across their usual snappy success. Miss Ruth Myford, of Belle Vernon, was easily the hit of the show with her singing. She has been studying music in New York and in June will go to Italy to complete her vocal training. Cecil Walker, Roy Wilkinson, "Boots" Jones and Mr. Snavely, were the star ballad singers, while Beck and Fisher distinguished themselves on the end positions. Pete Ryan gave a new and clever juggling act. The entire troupe journeyed to Rockview on Monday evening and played to an appreciative audience of prisoners. Beaded bags and necklaces were presented to the ladies who took part in the show, namely the Misses Magdalen Sunday, Virginia Thompson and Huberta May Bernhardt, and Mrs. J. A. Dunkle, of Pittsburgh, by the prisoners, in token of their appreciation of the performance.

TRYING TO FOOL THE FARMER

After passing a Bonus Bill that will take billions from the tax payers and will prove of doubtful benefit to the soldier, and agreeing on a revenue bill that violates every principle of sound finance, our cheap Congress will now try to pass another vote getting measure, the McNary—Haugen Bill, This bill fixes the price of wheat and other farm products above the natural market price, the government buying the surplus.

In writing of the bill Mr. George E. Roberts, the known economist, says,—"Any kind of general Governmental price fixing is fundamentally unsound. It has been proved so by every experience that we have ever had. We have got to deal with fundamental conditions, the relation of surplus and demand. It is a mistake to think that in the case of wheat, hogs, milk or any other produce, prices can be arbitrarily fixed or held regardless of the relation between supply and demand. It is idle to encourage production at prices above those at which consumption will absorb the supply. You cannot interfere with these natural relations between price and quantity, with supply and demand, without disturbing the entire balance."

This is sound common sense as all thoughtful men will agree.

The only remedy for the low price of wheat is less wheat; diversified farming in those sections of the west where nothing but wheat is produced.

The McNary bill will help everyone that handles wheat, but not the farmer that grows it.

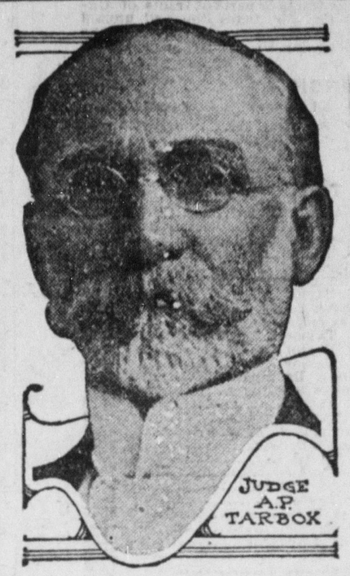
VETERAN JUDGE GIVES FACTS IN HIS CASE



Honorable A. P. Tarbox, distinguished lawyer and judge, residing at 217 West 23rd St., University Place, Neb., lends his name to further the cause of Tanlac, the famous treatment that has proved of such great benefit to him.

"If anybody knows what Tanlac will do," recently said Judge Tarbox, "it is me, for the medicine has kept me on my feet and able to work for the past two years."

Judge Tarbox has been a member of the bar since early manhood and has practiced law in Illinois, Nebraska and Oklahoma for more than a half century. He is a charter member of Farragut Post, Lincoln, G. A. R., and also prominent in fraternal order circles. Speaking further of his experience with Tanlac, Judge Tarbox said:

"Stomach trouble had been the bane of my existence even before the Civil War. Indigestion such as I had is about the worst enemy a person could have, and it kept getting worse all the time.

"I simply could not have kept going the past two years if it had not been for Tanlac. It made my weak stomach sound and wholesome, did away with all signs of indigestion and built me up in a way I had thought impossible.

"In fact, Tanlac has brought me health, strength and happiness when I was sick and suffering, so I have every reason to give it my unqualified endorsement and praise."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Up Ladder of Fame From Bottom Rung

The fact that a labor government is now sitting in the seats of the mighty has focused the mind of the nation on the wonderful advance many of its members have made, from mill and mines and footplate to high offices of state, says London Tit-Bits.

It would be a mistake, however, to imagine that it is a new thing to start at the foot of the social ladder and climb to the top. Ben Jonson, poet and scholar, whose epitaph, "O Rare Ben Jonson!" is one of the curiosities of Westminster abbey, worked at the building of Lincoln's inn, with a book in his pocket and a trowel in his hand.

Then George Stephenson began his career in a coal pit, while John Bunyan was originally a tinker.

James Hogg, the Scottish poet, was a shepherd in Ettrick forest and the immortal Burns followed the plow. Opie, the great painter, who lived to have nobles waiting their turn in his studio, was apprenticed to a carpenter in his boyhood.

SWAMP-ROOT FOR KIDNEY AILMENTS

There is only one medicine that really stands out pre-eminent as a medicine for curable ailments of the kidneys, liver and bladder.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proven to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of distressing cases. Swamp-Root makes friends quickly because its mild and immediate effect is soon realized in most cases. It is a gentle, healing vegetable compound.

Start treatment at once. Sold at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing, be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

No Problem at All

An instructor in an automobile school was instructing his class in regard to breakdowns on the road, and how to make rapid repairs for same.

He pointed his finger at the most stupid one in the class and said: "John, you are driving a big bus, and have 20 passengers en route to a picnic, with baskets full of fine things to eat, and your engine goes dead ten miles from the picnic grounds. What are you going to do?"

John replied: "We would have the picnic right there."

Weathervanes Back

Weathervanes, popular a century ago, and which disappeared from general use about a generation back, are coming into vogue again in America. This probably is due to the increasing use of copper as a weatherproof material for the vanes, and the revival of colonial architecture. In contrast to weathervanes of the past, which were conventional arrows, horses, or birds, gilded, the new weathervanes are more works of art, and lack the garish appearance imparted by gold leaf.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

WOMAN FORGER CONFESSES SHE LIVED DUAL LIFE

Philadelphian Was Wife of Carpenter Days and Bride of Banker at Night.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The wife of a carpenter in the daytime, and the bride of a wealthy banker at night, Mrs. Anna Beswick, fifty, is awaiting a hearing on charges of forgery, which, in an alleged confession given out by the police, she said she was forced to commit to obtain money for blackmailers, who had threatened to expose her dual life.

Had 18 Children.

Apparently neither Samuel E. Beswick, by whom she said she had 18 children, nor William C. Martin, vice president of a suburban bank, who she declared she had married last February, and from whom she said she had taken at least $50,000 to pay for the blackmailers' silence, knew of her double life. Martin married her, she said, in the belief that she had been divorced.

Mrs. Beswick was arrested outside the courtroom of Judge J. Willis Martin, whose name she is alleged to have forged to letters through which she is charged with having obtained $5,000 from William Shuman and Ralph Hawthorn, who had the warrant issued for her arrest.

Paid Blackmailers.

Alleged Blackmailers Held.

Mrs. Beswick named Herbert Russle, John McCoy and Erwin Hamilton as her alleged blackmailers. They were arrested on charges of extortion, conspiracy and blackmail. Mrs. Beswick said they had learned of her double life through driving her in a taxicab from the modest home of her children and their father in West Philadelphia to the more pretentious residence of Martin in Fox Chase, a northern suburb. Mrs. Beswick told the police she had paid these men at least $50,000.

The police learned from the woman's first husband that she had served six months in prison in 1917 for check forgeries.

Martin appeared stunned when he was summoned to the district attorney's office. He told the authorities that Mrs. Beswick had gotten "a lot" of money from him, but that he could not state the exact amount.

"Wild Man of Gayville" Only a Homesick Youth

Yankton, S. D.—Reports of a "wild man" in the vicinity of Gayville took Sheriff James Foley down there in a hurry. The man was said to be wearing a knotted handkerchief about his head and to be well armed with gun and knife. The sheriff found his man and he proved to be a fifteen-year-old boy, who said he was out hunting. His folks had sent him out from Chicago to work and he was lonesome and homesick, he said, and wanted to go back.

Autoist Has Miraculous Escape While on Cliff

Fairfax, Wash.—C. G. Sheldon of Seattle had a miraculous escape recently when his car's steering gear broke at the top of a 250-foot cliff in the White river canyon. The automobile turned over and hung, teetering on the brink of the drop, near the high trestle across the canyon. Sheldon crawled out, with his dog, practically unhurt. A minute afterward the auto overbalanced and fell into the abyss.

Opens Cell With Wood Key

Marble Hill, Mo.—In jail for robbing the bank where he was employed as cashier, R. E. Burgess, of Marble Hill, whittled his way to freedom. He made a wooden key, unlocked his cell door, and walked away when the jailer was absent.

Acquitted Man Stays in Jail

Fricksboro, N. J.—Rather than return to his home, Thompson Dickson, aged farmer of Fricksboro, acquitted on a charge of having murdered his fifteen-year-old daughter, continues to make his home at the county jail.

Boy Discovers $10,000 Buried in Skunk Hide

Coal Gate, Okla.—While hunting, John Hockaby, fourteen years old, chased a rabbit into a hollow tree and uncovered $10,000 wrapped in an old skunk hide. The money was buried long ago, as the printing on the bills is dim. It was sent to the Treasury department for redemption.

SUES ESTATE OF MAN WHO HANGED SELF

St. Louis Woman Asks $10,000 in Unique Action.

St. Louis.—When John P. Martin, formerly manager of the Martin building, came to the home of Mrs. Mary Shupe, he agreed to conduct himself in an orderly manner and not interfere with the welfare of the family.

But a few months later he went to the basement of her home and committed suicide by hanging himself from a water pipe.

This, Mrs. Shupe contends, was a violation of his agreement, and she brought suit for $10,000 damages in the Circuit court against Joseph E. Martin, administrator of the estate of John Martin.

In committing suicide at her home, she complained in her petition, Martin "acted voluntarily and intentionally and knew he would disturb and disrupt the peace and quiet" of herself and family.

Martin, she explained, lived at her home as a roomer and boarder for about six weeks prior to his death. During that time, she declared, he conducted himself in a "reasonable and orderly" manner, according to agreement.

But, without even "notice or warning," Mrs. Shupe alleges, he went to her basement and ended his life.

The next morning, she complains, she went to the basement and collided with Martin's body. The discovery, she added, severely shocked her nervous system, and as a result her health was greatly disturbed. She later became "sick and ill," she asserted, and had to get the services of three physicians.

The illness, she said, is permanent and she is unable to perform her household duties.

Martin is one of the heirs to the Martin estate.

Child Believed Dead for Two Years Given to Mother

New York.—There is joy in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Shoemart and sorrow in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Florella over one of the strangest mix-ups of babies ever recorded here.

For nearly two years the Shoemarts had mourned the death at birth of their son, born March 6, 1922. Mr. Shoemart had paid the funeral expenses. On the same date a baby was born to Mrs. Florella. The Florella baby was the one that died, but through an error at St. Barnabas house, city mission, the babies were mixed. The error was not discovered until recently, the baby having been cared for at St. Barnabas house, a charitable institution, until the mother was able to care for it. Then Mrs. Florella wouldn't accept the child. She said it wasn't her Joseph.

The body of the dead baby was exhumed and now there is happiness in the Shoemart home and grief for the Florellas.

Man Locked in Safe by Yeggs Almost Suffocated

Cleveland.—Imprisoned in an airtight vault by two armed robbers, Clayton Webb, manager of the City Savings and Loan company branch office in east Cleveland, was carried out unconscious after 45 minutes, in which he faced death by suffocation. From the vault and cash drawer in his cage the bandits took approximately $4,000 and escaped. They overlooked $5,000 in the vault. Webb was quickly revived.

Before officials from the main office reached the branch bank and rescued Webb, east Cleveland police worked for 20 minutes in an effort to get him out after Webb had shouted the numbers of the vault's combination through the steel and concrete walls.

Bellefonte, Pa.—Dominick Delfino of Archbald, Pa., who was convicted of murder and who evaded the death penalty for six years by escaping to Canada, was electrocuted in the Rockview penitentiary. He was convicted in 1917 for the killing of Demetro Morobito, near Scranton. He was rearrested in Vancouver last year.

Bean Causes Child's Death

Hunts, N. Y.—A bean which lodged in her windpipe caused the death of the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Stockweather, of Hunts. The child died as she was being carried into a doctor's office by her mother.

Phone Girl Captures Thief

Elmgrove, W. Va.—Miss Margaret K. Center, a telephone girl, sounded the alarm when she saw a bandit robbing the First National bank, at Elmgrove, W. Va. The bandit was wounded by a posse and taken to the hospital.

SEMI-SPORTS FOR SUMMER; TAILORED HATS THE VOGUE

IN SUITS and day dresses, coats and millinery for summer wear, we find a flavor of sports styles everywhere present. There is a middle ground between the tailored mode and real sports wear, which fashion takes to most kindly—and the designers of clothes for outdooring govern themselves accordingly. They are turning out what have been best described as "semi-sports styles" which prove to be so adaptable and accommodating that one may wear them almost anywhere.

A suit and a street dress as shown in the picture (both made of flannel), reveal the assertiveness and the reserve that combine to make semi-sports styles. The suit is as simple as possible, a plain straight coat in company with a plain straight skirt, which would certainly be commonplace if each garment were not bordered with bands in contrasting and fascinating colors. There are many color combinations offered in suits like this, with tan, brown and all kindred tones, gray and beige, presenting themselves as backgrounds for bands in the season's higher colors.

With a suit of this kind one may elect to wear either a sports or a street hat, and footwear which also will emphasize the tailored or the sports aspect of the costume.

Striped flannels seem to belong to sports dress and it is not so easy to convert them into tailored frocks. But color is a factor to be reckoned with in them and they bring much grist to the mill of the designer of semi-sports clothes. The straightline dress pictured appropriates a tailored decoration, in the long row of buttons from neck to hem and in the dainty batiste collar and cuffs, worn with it. Shoes, hat and strand of beads, all proclaim its intention of doing service as a street dress. But one can easily imagine it with a little felt sports hat, and the proper sports shoes, vieing with regular sports clothes—upon occasion.

If fate were to say to nine out of ten discriminating women: "You may have but one hat this season," it goes almost without saying that nine tailored hats would be very carefully chosen by their prospective wearers. For the tailored hat may be designed to be quite versatile and is a necessity with the tailored suit, so every woman must have one.

But there are tailored hats and tailored hats, some of them very trim and businesslike, and others not at all severe, but showing a disposition to be a little frivolous. One kind is as becoming as the other, but the strictly tailored hat is not as adaptable as its more easy-going sister. The matter of becomingness is the most important thing one has to consider in selecting a tailored hat. If precision of line and absence of warm color make the severely tailored type less becoming than others, one is warranted in passing it up.

Two Pretty Summer Modes.

A very becoming model in the group pictured, with black milan brim and crepe crown, reveals one interpretation of the tricorn—dear to the hearts of those who make tailored hats. A bit of silver ribbon and two little ostrich feather pin wheels, contribute a smart trim to it. It belongs to the tailored suit. At the right is one of those delightful becoming hats, made entirely of wide moire ribbon, a turban beautifully draped and artfully finished with two jewel-like pins. This is the sort of hat that may be worn with tailored or with dressier clothes, and opposite it is a hat of the same character but more colorful made of Roman striped ribbon.

Group of Tailored Hats

Two black and white models finish the group, one of white straw braid and crepe in sections, overlaid with narrow black braid and finished with a flat cabochon. The black milan sailor has a collar of two-toned ribbon and a silver ornament supporting long ends of ribbon that are unusual on hats of this kind. But this wide-hanging ribbon takes the place of a scarf and is worn wrapped about the throat.

Where the River Shannon Flows

Project on Foot to Harness Historic Irish Stream.

Washington.—"The Shannon river, which so long has figured in the romances of the imaginative Irish, will soon be connected with an industrial romance of that country, if the great engineering project for harnessing its waters, reported to be in progress, is put into operation," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Dainty shamrock blooms and other flowers nod their pretty heads by the side of its foaming weirs and its bawling rapids. They give a colorful background to stories concerning the fairies who still play pranks upon the inhabitants in its vicinity, the miraculous cures of the numerous holy wells, and the potency of the wishing wells near its banks.

Longest in Irish Free State.

"Statistically speaking, the Shannon is the largest and longest river in the new Irish Free State, measures 240 miles in length and is eight miles wide at its mouth. During its course it drops 150 feet from the foot of the Cuilcagh mountains, where it rises, to the sea—the last feature being the source of its power to turn the wheels of industry.

"From Loop Head and Kerry Head, the twin capes at its entrance to the sea, it is navigable for all classes of ships for 36 miles, or up to its junction with the Fergus river and a considerable world navy might be hidden within its estuary, which in some places widens out to ten miles. Once, many years ago, the town of Limerick at the head of navigation on the Shannon, had fond aspirations of being the greatest port in Ireland because ships from America could sail up the river and dock at her wharves, but a turn in the tide of affairs of the island caused the city to wither away, and now few boats except excursion steamers and pleasure craft drop their gangplanks along Limerick's waterfront.

"Down through Lough Allen, near the northwestern coast of Ireland out into the central portion of the country and back again to the southwest, the river flows, measuring off a portion of land very similar in shape to Wales, about the same size and in a corresponding location with reference to Ireland that Wales bears to England. It has been canalized and made navigable for small vessels as far as Lough Allen near its source; the Grand and Royal canals connect it with Dublin, the Ulster canal with Belfast. Its volume is obtained from a catchment basin of 4,544 square miles.

Divides Island Historically.

"Historically speaking, it has for a thousand or more years been the dividing line between eastern Ireland, which was overrun at various times by the Danes and the English, and western Ireland, which is Irish through and through and where Gaelic is still the language of the people.

"But the beautiful fertile valley, with its green, calm, lush meadows seems fitter for a more peaceful life than history has hitherto accorded it. The Danes pushed their boats up to the head of navigation at Limerick in the Ninth century, and managed to throw a bridge across the river. This was almost the only way of getting across the river barrier with the exception of the ford at Athlone just below Lough Ree.

"Brian Boru led his forces against the Danes and drove them out after a struggle which romantically colors the pages of Irish history, but the Normans came just a little while later, took Limerick and erected a great round-towered castle from which they might clinch their hold upon the country. Scarcely a century passed that did not know bloody struggles along the peaceful river. Edward Bruce captured the Norman castle in 1316, and Hugh O'Neill held it for six months against one of the greatest of Cromwell's generals. The venerable old castle, with its great drumlike towers and walls ten feet thick, stands by the riverside today.

"The portion of the river just above Limerick is known as the most beautiful, and has been dubbed by happy fishermen the 'Utopia of Irish anglers.' Its salmon and trout fishing are famous enough to make devotees caress their rods, poles, and flies in retrospect over the hours they spent at Carrick-on-Shannon, Athlone, Killaloe, or Castleconnel."

Texas Landmark Is Being Razed

72 - Year - Old Schoolhouse Has Romantic History.

Austin, Tex.—Austin's first schoolhouse, the parent of all Texas educational institutions and a landmark in the Southwest, is being razed in preparation for the erection of a modern residence upon the site where the school has stood the last 72 years.

A bride's wedding gift, the old structure has in turn been a home, a schoolhouse, a powder magazine for the Confederate army, a public meeting place, and in the later days a boarding house for university students.

It was built in 1852 by the slaves of Louis Horst, a land baron of those days. It has changed hands only twice in its history and is now owned by Edward Booth, who wants to erect a modern dwelling on the site.

Its limerock walls have withstood even an attack by the federal army, whose soldiers, during the reconstruction period, ripped off its roof and all its floors to make platforms for their tents.

Erected in 1852.

The occasion for the erection of the house was the marriage of Miss Louise Horst, daughter of the great landowner, to George Robinson in 1852.

The bride's father owned a vast tract of land, including the present university neighborhood and all north Austin, extending approximately as far south as Fifteenth street, which then marked the northern boundary of the city limits, though the town itself was at that time a full mile away, situated upon the banks of the Colorado.

Horst desired to build his daughter a home as a wedding gift. Accordingly, in the year of her marriage, he built the ancient structure which stood until recently in as firm a condition as it was on the day of its completion. The "lot" which went with the house included practically all of present north Austin.

Used as Powder House.

In 1862, when the Yankees captured New Orleans and Galveston, excitement ran high in the southern part of the state, and three forts were erected to guard approaches to the capital city. The rock edifice was then turned into a powder house and magazine for high explosives. But when Dick Taylor with a handful of Texans defeated Banks and Porter at Sabine Cross Roads in April of 1863, the excitement died out, and the old house was emptied of its military equipment and again made into a schoolhouse.

Louis Horst, grandson of the elder Horst who erected the house, and a resident of Austin at the present time, spent his first school days in this old hall.

Refuge in Indian Attacks.

For many years the seven-room rock house was a refuge for people living in the neighborhood when Indian attacks were made. Numerous legends concerning scalpings and Indian atrocities that occurred around the old landmark are yet told.

The nearest to destruction that has ever fallen to the lot of the ancient building, prior to the razing now going on, occurred during the first days of the period of reconstruction following the Civil war, when Union troops were stationed in Austin to reinstate federal power and the state government. They pitched their tents on College hill, where the plant of the University of Texas stands today; but when it rained the ground became too damp for their convenience. The soldiers were then ordered to make lumber floors for the tents, wood for which was to be taken from the old rock schoolhouse. The school was broken up and every board in and on the house was taken—the porch, window frames, blinds, doors, roofing, floors and all.

The elder Horst appealed several times to the legislature for damage done to the building by federal troops, but indemnity was never obtained.

NEW UNIVERSE IS SEEN IN HARVARD PHOTOGRAPHS

Faint Haze in Sagittarius May Prove That Heavens Are Formed From Ice.

Washington.—Government scientists identified with glacial research work in Glacier National park are showing interest in the new theory developed by the Viennese scientist, Dr. Hans Hoerbiger, that glacial cosmogony "explains" the origin of the heavens.

This idea, that ice is the building material with which new universes are constantly forming in the heavens, recently stirred scientific circles of Europe. Now it is being given particular attention in America in connection with the recent discovery at the Harvard observatory, where photographs were taken showing that a faint and nameless luminous haze in the sky in the constellation of Sagittarius, the Archer, is a distinct universe.

From these photographs Dr. Harlow Shapely, director of the observatory, estimates that it takes 1,000,000 years for light to travel from this newly found universe, which, he says, is the most distant object ever viewed by the eye of man. He bases this statement on the fact that the most distant stars known prior to this measurement are only 250,000 light-years from our earth.

The new universe found by the mammoth lenses measures six quintillion miles away. It took a 100-inch reflecting telescope, the largest ever made, to find this "cloud of stars."

Poster Hidden 52 Years

Port Huron, Mich.—A circus poster, pasted to the wall of a building on Military street 52 years ago and covered by an adjoining wall has again seen daylight. Workmen removing the wall found the poster. It advertises the Adam Forepaugh circus, showing in Port Huron, May 5, 1872.

Milk-Burning Engine Draws Cars 20 Miles

Chicago.—Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, health commissioner of Chicago, ran a train over the Rock Island tracks from the Englewood station to Beverly Hills and back, about twenty miles, using for fuel chunks of dry milk instead of coal.

When the skeptical crowd reached the station Doctor Bundesen was at the throttle in the engine cab and E. Worthmiller, the fireman, was shoveling chunks of dried cow's milk into the firebox. During the entire experiment milk was the only thing fed to the fire.

The locomotive pulled a train of five cars, carrying more than 200 passengers, mostly children, from the Chicago Home for Friendless Children and the Chicago Orphan asylum.

Old Smith and His Toy Soldiers

By MORRIS SCHULTZ

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

WE BOYS were all dreadfully afraid of Old Man Smith. He lived in a little house round the corner all alone. He had a married daughter who used to call and quarrel with him every week or so.

"That Simpson woman's trying to get Old Man Smith declared senile, so that she can get her hands on his property," my father said. "He's as sensible as you or me."

I didn't understand what that meant. To us boys Old Man Smith was a constant invitation to deeds of heroism. It was an achievement to throw a handful of sand against his windows and scoot away as his angry face appeared, to listen to his threats bawled after us.

"Bet you don't dare knock on Old Man Smith's door and run, Skinny!"

"Bet you I do!"

"Let's see you!"

I set off, my heart beating swiftly, to execute the dare. I was caught. The first stroke of the knocker had hardly resounded when the door opened suddenly. Old Man Smith stretched out a long arm and hauled me inside. I was sure my last hour had come.

"Oh please, Old Man Smith, I won't do it again if you'll let me go!" I howled.

Old Man Smith stood looking at me queerly. "Ever play soldiers?" he asked.

"Sure, when I got them," I answered, more confidently.

He led me into a back room. The floor was covered with soldiers, regiments of them, with cannon and fortresses.

"Come on, let's have a game," said Old Man Smith, handing me a peashooter.

As soon as my terror had worn off I flung myself into the game. We played for hours, as it seemed. I forgot that my opponent was Old Man Smith.

"Run home now, Johnny, and come back when you feel like it," said Old Man Smith. "It's so long since I was a boy."

"Did you play soldiers then?" I asked.

"Never had any. This is our secret, Johnny; don't you let on!"

I agreed, and, thrilled with our secret, departed.

"Gee, Skinny, what'd he do to you?" asked the boys.

"Took me inside and give me candies and cakes and picture books," I lied.

I was a hero after that. My weekly visits to Old Man Smith's house were the subject of awe and admiration. And I drew on my imagination to my playfellows.

We played soldiers, we marched round the table, blowing the trumpet and banging drums. And there was one afternoon when we scooted round the big back yard together, laughing and tumbling down like two kids, instead of an old man and a boy. I quite forgot that Old Man Smith wasn't my age at all.

"I never did this when I was a boy," said Old Man Smith. "We do have a good time, don't we, Johnny? But you must never tell! If that cat found out—" I didn't know which cat he meant.

I never had so much money as in those days. There was a silver dollar for me every week when I went away. One day a strange lady stopped me in the street.

"You are Mr. Smith's friend, aren't you, boy?" she asked.

"Yes'm."

"What do you do when you go to see him?"

"Oh, we play things." I had quite forgotten Mr. Smith's injunction. The strange lady smiled at me.

"Do you like ice cream, boy?"

I admitted I did. So she took me to an ice-cream shop and stuffed me with ice cream and cakes, and I told her everything Old Man Smith and I did together.

Next week when I went to play the house was closed. I thought Old Man Smith must have gone for a holiday.

"That Simpson woman's had her father taken away as senile," said my father to my mother that night. "They took him off today."

"Good gracious!" my mother exclaimed.

"I guess he was. They found the house full of children's toys."

I didn't understand. I went to the house every day for weeks, looking for my friend. But Old Man Smith never came back.

Editor Had Underrated That Hollywood Spirit

A young magazine editor of New York took a trip to California and happened in upon Hollywood. He was invited to a motion-picture party and decided to put off his usual reserve and diffidence and enter fully into the spirit of the occasion. He devoted his attention throughout the evening to a young film actress.

"I will be wild," he determined. "I will be rowdy. I will behave with all the abandon for which Hollywood is famous."

He did his best, but suddenly, as he was playing the role to the limit of his capacity, the young woman broke down and wept.

The editor asked the cause of her distress, and with tears in her eyes she looked up and said: "I've been here almost a year now and you're the first fellow that's acted to me like a gentleman."—Heywood Broun in the New York World.

"PRISON WITHOUT CELLS"

Supt. Stutzman, of Rockview, Gives Views on Modern Methods.

The Harrisburg "Telegraph" last week published the following regarding future plans for Rockview prison:

Several million dollars are expected to be saved the people of the State as a result of the revision of the plans for building the Rockview Penitentiary at Bellefonte because the new plans, suggested by the board of trustees and approved by Governor Pinchot, contemplate a complete change in the original intention of the designers. The State now plans to fashion out a model prison and farm on the 6,000 acre tract in Centre county. Massive cell blocks and great towers will give way to a series of dormitories, each housing fifty prisoners. The change in construction plans will, it is claimed, effect considerable saving, for while it would have cost the State $6,000 to provide permanent accomodations for a single prisoner under the old plan, the dormitory type of construction will require the expenditure of but $675 per prisoner.

The revision of the plans for the penitentiary has not been confined to the physical features alone. Under the management of Warden John O. Stutzman, a new scheme for the handling of the prisoners has been evolved which has been pronounced "eminently successful" by Governor Pinckot and Dr. Ellen C. Potter, welfare secretary.

The 650 men prisoners are housed in great dormitories, somewhat resembling army barracks. All day long they are engaged in farming and construction work under the supervision of the warden and a small corps of guards. Both Governor Pinchot and Dr. Potter have praised the Rockview system and have expressed their satisfaction at the manner in which Mr. Stutzman is handling the prison problem at the State penitentiary.

Eventually it is planned to make Rockview the model prison of the State. It will be held out as a reward for those prisoners in the other two penitentiaries who behave themselves and prove that they are capable of responding to the treatment accorded prisoners at Rockview. It is expected that the inmates of Rockview will eventually raise all the food and provisions for the other two State penitentiaries in the State.

Rockview will continue to be a prison without cells and walls, according to Warden Stutzman. While he plans to utilize a cell building that has already been constructed nevertheless he does not intend to lock the prisoners up at night.

"When you send a man out on the farm all day, often without a guard, he returns each night." Mr. Stutzman stated, "it would hardly be sensible to lock that man up at night like a caged animal, especially when he made no attempt to escape during the day when he had all sorts of opportunities.

"I expect to achieve far better results with the prisoners here by treating them as men than I would if I were to make them think that I was eternally afraid that they might escape. I am sure that if I watched them constantly they would feel that they should endeavor to get away and I would have an old fashioned penitentiary where I would have to place the men under lock and key all the time."
